REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE

I, the Chairman of the Select Committee to which the Bill* further to amend the Indian Penal Code was referred, having been authorised to submit the Report on their behalf, present this their Report, with the Bill as amended by the Committee annexed thereto.

2. The Bill was introduced in the Rajya Sabha on the 3rd May, 1963. On the 26th February, 1965, the House adopted a motion for the circulation of the Bill for eliciting opinion thereon by the 31st December, 1965. The motion for reference of the Bill to a Select Committee of the House was moved on the 19th August, 1966 by Diwan Chaman Lall and was adopted by the House on the same day. (Appendix I).

3. The Committee held thirteen sittings in all.

4. The Committee decided that in view of the fact that the Indian Penal Code (Amendment) Bill, 1963, had already been circulated for eliciting public opinion, no press communique need be issued inviting memoranda etc., from the public. The Committee, however, decided to invite some expert witnesses to give oral evidence before the Committee on the various aspects of the Bill and accordingly heard the evidence tendered by seventeen individuals. (Appendix II).

5. The Committee decided that the whole of the evidence tendered before them be laid on the Table of the House.

6. The Report of the Committee was to be presented on the 7th November, 1966. The Committee was, however, granted extension of time first upto the 18th March, 1967 and then again upto the 22nd May, 1967.

7. The Committee considered the Bill clause by clause at their sitting held on the 5th May, 1967 and adopted their Report on the 20th May, 1967.

8. The Committee also held three sittings in Bombay from the 24th April to 26th April, 1967 with the permission of the Chairman.

*Published in Part II, Section 2 of the Gazette of India Extraordinary, dated the 3rd May, 1963.

9. Before dealing in detail with the changes made in the Bill, the Committee wish to draw attention to the reasons which necessitated alterations in the proposed legislation.

10. The Bill as introduced in the House seeks to give protection to publications and objects which are meant for public good or for bona-fide purposes of science, literature, art or any other branch of learning. It also contains provision enabling the Law Courts to admit as evidence the opinion of experts regarding the obscenity or otherwise of the publication or the object concerned. The idea as the Committee could gather was to liberalise the law in the country in regard to publications and objects of the kind referred to above and to bring it in conformity with similar laws in other countries. However, several members of the Committee and distinguished persons who were called as witnesses stressed that while liberalising the law of obscenity in favour of works of science, literature and art, sufficient care should be taken so that flood-gates are not opened for obscene publications and objects masquerading under the name, and in the guise, of works of science, literature and art. With a view to making the existing law more definite, the Committee thought it advisable to define the concept of 'obscenity' based on certain standards and principles laid down by the Law Courts during all these years. The Committee have, therefore, inserted in the Bill itself a provision which explains the connotation of the expression 'obscenity'.

The Committee have also taken the opportunity to tighten up the law relating to the publication of obscene matters or objects by providing for deterrent punishments.

11. The principal changes suggested by the Committee in the Bill and the reasons therefor are set out in the succeeding paragraphs:

Clause 2

Sub-clause (a) (new): As already pointed out, the new sub-clause is designed to explain the connotation of the expression 'obscenity'.

Sub-clause (b)

Para (i) (new): The Committee felt that in order to make the law relating to the publication of obscene matters or objects deterrent, it was necessary to enhance the punishment provided in section 292 of the Indian Penal Code. The Committee have, therefore, increased the punishment to:

- (i) in the case of first conviction, imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to two years and with a fine which may extend to two thousand rupees; and
- (ii) in the case of a second or subsequent offence, imprisonment which may extend to five years and fine which may extend to five thousand rupees.

Necessary provision has been made in the para.

Para (ii) (original clause 2): Original clause 2 purported to be an exception to the provisions contained in sections 292 and 293 of the Indian Penal Code. The Committee felt that it would be more appropriate to incorporate the principle underlying the original clause in the existing Exception to section 292 of the Indian Penal Code. [Sub-para (a)].

The Committee also felt that any representation sculptured, engraved or painted on or in any ancient monument should be exempted from the provisions of section 292 of the Indian Penal Code. [Sub-para (b)].

The para has, therefore, been redrafted accordingly.

The proviso to the original clause 2 was omitted as section 45 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, gives ample power to the Court to call for expert opinion in the event of any dispute arising in the matter.

In view of the reasons stated above, consequential increase in the quantum of punishment provided in section 293 of the Indian Penal Code has been made. [Sub-para (c)].

Clause 3 (new)

*Para (a)—*The Committee felt that the law relating to the matter should be strengthened, not only by enhancing the punishments provided for the offence, but also by making provision for the forfeiture of obscene matters and objects. To secure this objective, the Committee have amended Section 99-A of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898.

*Para (b)—*Since it is very difficult to determine what is, and what is not, obscene and since the decision depends on the maturity, experience and education of the person deciding the matter, the Committee felt that the responsibility for the trial of offences under section 292 or 293 of the Indian Penal Code should be given to judicial officers of sufficient maturity and seniority. The Committee were, therefore, of the view that the offences under both the sections should be made exclusively triable by the Court of Session. Necessary amendments have been made in Schedule II to the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898.

Clause 1, Enacting Formula and the Title

The amendments made are formal and of a drafting nature.

12. The Committee recommend that the Bill, as amended, be passed.
